FOREWORD

"I am a part of all that I have met . . ."

Tennyson

To accurately describe the influence of Hampden-Sydney on the lives of the young men enrolled here would be impossible. Unlimited opportunity exists here for any student, yet it is the student himself who must grasp this opportunity and use it as a springboard to success in life. This opportunity may have been for outstanding scholastic achievement, extra-curricular activities, or just the spirit of friendliness and cooperation which pervades our campus. All of us will treasure these poignant memories of our college experiences. With this thought in mind, we, the staff of the Kaleidoscope, have tried to portray life at Hampden-Sydney. We hope that now and in the years to come, this book may recall many happy memories of life on the "Hill."

THE INSPIRATION OF A NAME

In 1776 the Thirteen Colonies began their struggle for independence. Why then should a college in Virginia, the leader in this fight for liberty, be named for two Englishmen? Although we have no accurate record of circumstances surrounding the naming of Hampden-Sydney, these reasons may be readily conjectured.

The one idea which pervaded the thoughts and actions of these founders of our school may be summed up in one word—Liberty. In the immortal words of one of the first trustees, "Give me liberty or give me death!" Small wonder then that the idols of these early patriots were men who had given their very lives for liberty. And in what better way could these two men be honored than by having a small liberal arts college bear their name; a college where the ideals of its founders would be passed on from generation to generation.

John Hampden had begun his struggle for liberty nearly a century and a half before our Declaration of Independence was written. He was well-born, highly educated, and heir to an ample fortune. Yet Hampden did not choose this easy life, for it meant abject service to a selfish and unscrupulous king. Instead he sided with an oppressed people in their struggle for liberty. After nearly a quarter of a century of fearless service for this cause, he died the death of a martyr while leading a brilliant charge against the king's forces at Chalgrove Field, where he was mortally wounded.

But this cause of English liberty was not to go unchampioned. Another brilliant young nobleman, Algernon Sydney, took up the fight where Hampden had left off. Sydney's service for liberty is a long tale of brilliant exploits. Upon the restoration of Charles II, Sydney, for defiance of the king, was exiled for seventeen years. But he returned to England to take up again the cause of liberty. He produced a great book, "Discourses on Government," which became a handbook for those who loved civil and religious liberty. Finally he too died the martyr's death. He was falsely convicted and beheaded, his chief crime having been that, in his own words, "from my youth I endeavored to uphold the common rights of this land, and the true protestant religion, against corrupt principles, arbitrary power, and poverty."

Surely it was fitting to immortalize these two men by naming the new educational institution Hampden-Sydney College.

HAMPDEN HOUSE — Ancestral home of John Hampden in Buckinghamshire, England.

PENSHURST PLACE — Present home of Lord De L'Isle and Dudley in Kent, England. It was the home of Algernon Sydney.

DEDICATION

Venable Hall

Through the various course of one hundred eighty-one years Hampden-Sydney College has enjoyed the successive dedicated efforts of seventeen presidential administrations, which constitute a collective consecration to the ideal of Christian education in the liberal arts, the supreme purpose and vital hope which has led these our Presidents to provide the history of this College with cherished examples and honored achievements of fidelity and vision; in token of our ineffable gratitude we advance this volume in commemoration of the body of Presidents of Hampden-Sydney College. The history of Hampden-Sydney is the record of her Presidents; the traditionally academic atmosphere, founded upon standards and quality of students and faculty, the physical, intellectual, and spiritual facilities with which the College is endowed, her entire tenor and direction of life, all producing the development and cultivation sought here, all mirroring the essence of human spirit devoted to the human intellect to be encouraged here, all are her Presidents' legacies to Hampden-Sydney.

Now the College cannot consist simply in an attitude of mind: it must pursue an objective of worth with means conducive to its attainment. The objective of worth is supplied by the context of our cultural heritage, and, ultimately, it gave birth to Hampden-Sydney as an institution of liberal learning. But the presidential task embraces the conception and administration of the means necessary in achieving this cherished goal. As may be seen, our Presidents have been blessed with the faculty of vision. Why do we seek vision in what commonly is an educational administrator? We aver that Hampden-Sydney is not a common institution, requiring an administrator as president; rather we insist that this is a Christian educational institution requiring, therefore, a Christian educational philosopher to guide, guard, and direct its progress and achievement.

As we reflect upon the men who thus far have executed the Presidency of this College, there is suffused in us a pride of association, nay, communion with the collective result of a confluence of soul and mind into a body of tradition which compels an humility and gratitude for one hundred eighty-one years of perseverance in the attainment of an ideal imperishable and implacable so long as truth survive and men of God seek her.

A Description of a 181 Year Old Campus

The present campus is the outgrowth of two colleges; one being Hampden-Sydney College, originally consisting of Cushing Hall and the Alamo; and the other the Union Theological Seminary, composed of Penshurst, Venable Hall, and Middlecourt. The Seminary moved to Richmond in 1898, and their buildings eventually were given to the college. With additions between the two old campuses we find the present one consisting of:

1. MEMORIAL LIBRARY: gift to Seminary made the erection possible in 1880; rear annex added in 1936; original section burned in 1941; re-erected in 1949.
2. MIDDLECOURT: built in 1829 and called Boston; Richard Venable acquired it in 1898.
3. VENABLE HALL: originally the main building for Union Theological Seminary; "Stagger Inn;" built in 1825; main portion 1830-31; now houses freshmen and the dining hall.

4. PENSURST: erected in 1829 by Synod of North Carolina, which gave it its name; name was changed in 1898 to Penshurst, home of Algernon Sydney in Kent, England; today it is a faculty home.

5. JOHNS AUDITORIUM: named for Dr. Frank Stoddard Johns, Chairman of Board of Trustees, 1938, erected as assembly hall and chapel in 1951.

6. BAGBY HALL: in honor of John Hampden Chamberlain Bagby, the science building was erected in 1922; continues to house the chemistry, biology, and physics classrooms and laboratories.

7. GRAHAM HALL: front section erected in 1833; called Old President's Home; alumni and student publication offices are located here now; annex added as gymnasium in 1916 and named for college president, Dr. Henry Tucker Graham; 1954 it was turned into a dormitory and infirmary.

8. MEMORIAL GATE: plans originated in 1919 as a memorial to alumni killed in World War I; built by private subscription in 1921.

9. BELL TOWER: The Asa Dupuy Watkins Bell Tower; built in 1934 with bricks coming from locations significant to the college's history.

10. MORTON HALL: gift from Samuel Packwood Morton in 1936 for academic building; named for his ancestor John Morton, charter member of the Trustees.

11. McILWAINE HALL: originally called Memorial Hall and used as chapel and classroom until 1936; present name taken after president of Hampden-Sydney 1833-1904, Richard McIlwaine.

12. CUSHING HALL: first used as a chapel, classroom, and dormitory when built between 1822-30 at cost of $29,400, now houses upperclassmen.

13. THE ALAMO: located west of Cushing Hall; oldest building in the community; erected in 1817 for President Moses Hoge; later boarding house until turned into a faculty home at turn of the century.

14. VENABLE FIELD: so named Death Valley by the University of Richmond, who had great difficulty in defeating the Tigers on their home field.

15. GAMMON GYMNASIUM: erected in 1939-40 to take place of old gymnasium in Graham Hall; front annex added in 1955 for offices and lounge.

16. TENNIS COURTS.

17. COLLEGE CHURCH: present building erected on site of old College Church in 1865; it is not owned by the college, but is a separate entity itself.

18. PI KAPPA ALPHA FRATERNITY HOUSE.

19. KAPPA SIGMA FRATERNITY HOUSE.

20. SIGMA CHI FRATERNITY HOUSE.

21. KAPPA ALPHA FRATERNITY HOUSE.

22. LAMBDA CHI ALPHA FRATERNITY HOUSE.

23. OAK LODGE (house for those who do not choose to join a fraternity).

24. THETA CHI FRATERNITY HOUSE (the latest addition to the campus being completed in 1955).

25. COLLEGE CEMETERY (southern section) and College Church Cemetery (northern portion).

26. THE SIGN: Virginia historical marker tells briefly the history Hampden-Sydney has witnessed.

27. WESTMINSTER HALL: now houses the administration offices; built c. 1850 as a residence and later as a dining hall for Seminary student.

28. COLLEGE SHOP: the College Shop and Tea Room were added to the campus in 1928-29.

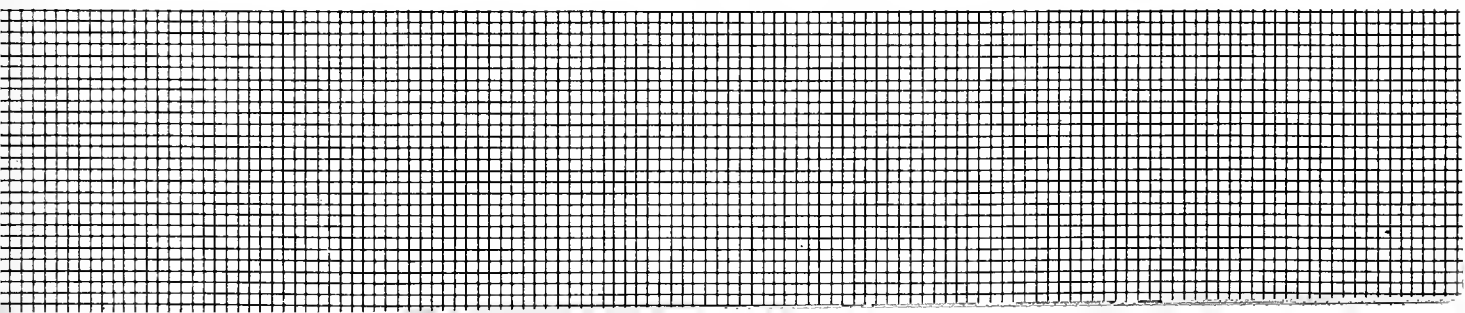

29. POST OFFICE: added in Dr. Gammon's administration in 1942.

30. CHI PHI HOUSE: formerly called Edinburgh and used as dormitory for married Seminary students; 1925 became the Chi Phi Fraternity House.

THE COLLEGE

PRESIDENT

JOSEPH CLARKE ROBERT

Dr. Joseph C. Robert was graduated magna cum laude from Furman University in 1927. He received his M.A. at Duke University two years later, and did his doctorate work at Duke and Harvard.

He was Instructor of History at Ohio State University and later taught at Duke University where he was made Associate Dean of the Graduate School in 1948, and a year later Professor of History.

Dr. Robert came to Hampden-Sydney from a position as president of Coker College, in Hartsville, South Carolina, which he had held since 1952.

He was inaugurated the seventeenth president of Hampden-Sydney College on March 23, 1956.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

I THE FORMATIVE PERIOD

"You know," mused George, "I think our Freshman year was the best I've ever spent here at Hampden-Sydney."

"I was just thinking the same thing," replied Sonny, who was just thinking the same thing.

"Of course," George continued. "Ratting was a pain in the gressorial hestium, but it passed soon enough; and the valuable lessons we learned in getting along with others, in . . ."

Okay, Halsey, can it!" exclaimed Sonny. "Ratting didn't teach you a thing, and you know it."

George dug his toe sheepishly into the asphalt tile. "Maybe not," he conceded, "but it sure added a lot to our Freshman year."

"It sure did," grinned Sonny, tossing his organic book into the open hearth. "But so did English themes, and panty raids, and cold showers, and hot tuna for breakfast, and . . ."

"And Dr. Guerrant and Bible 1-d," interrupted Russ, who had just entered the room. "I can still list thirty of the forty people in Acts."

"So can I," declared George. "And remember the time someone ripped the telephone off the wall because he couldn't get the operator? And unlimited Chapel cuts, and the first blush of spring, and the Army-McCarthy hearings?"

"Crim-i-nentles, didn't we have fun!" chortled Sonny, departing from his prepared text.

"What about the Commons?" queried Hal, who had been quietly cleaning his nails with the business end of a coat hanger.

"That's all you ever think about, your belly!" roared George, who had been thinking about his belly.

"I quite agree," replied Thrasymachus, who by now had regained his good temper.

"You know," mused Bill. "I think our Freshman year was the best I've ever spent here at Hampden-Sydney."

"That's just what George mused before you came in," sneered Sonny. "You'd better go back and read the first paragraph."

"Gosh, I'm sorry," Bill stammered apologetically.

"That's okay," smiled George, placing a gnarled hand on the youth's shoulder.

"Ahem," interjected Ed. "The thing I remember best about Our Freshman Year is the sunbaths behind Venable."

"I remember best the feud between Stagger and West End, climaxed by water battles, synthetic electricity failures, and brutal murders," added Walter.

"And I remember best the coke machine in Stagger in which you could put a nickel and get out a quarter. We used to play it for hours," grinned Louie, coins jingling in his pocket.

"And Idiot Dog, and The Wednesday Schedule, and the Kenbridge Tobacco Auctions," offered Tig, sidling up to the fireplace.

George strode over to his desk and turned on the radio. In self-defense, the radio turned on him, and the two, locked in a gladiatorial embrace, grappled on the floor for what must have been a full minute before Bill managed to separate them.

"All right," gasped George, when his breath had returned. "Suppose we adjourn until Chapel period tomorrow, when we'll review Our Sophomore Year."

II THE GATHERING STORM

The roll having been called, George, gavelling ugly welts into the rostrum, brought the group to order only with great difficulty.

"All right, you fellows," he rasped, "We're going to talk about Our Sophomore Year this morning. Now, who remembers something about it?"

"Well," declared The Weatherbird. "Our football team acquitted itself rather well that year."

"And Dr. Gammon and Mr. Rogers left us," cried Lou, who was trying to study for a psych quiz.

"And Mr. Hummel's Eco classes, and Bible 2-g under Dr. McRae," added Jim.

"You know," said Bill, gravely. "Come to think of it, that was probably the most difficult year we had, scholastically speaking."

"I think that's very true," replied George, turning to the scribes to make certain they were recording his homespun philosophy. "I suppose it was because we were no longer Freshmen and were no longer taking Freshman subjects. We were beginning to discover what college was all about, and to conduct ourselves accordingly."

"Okay, Socrates, let's get on with it!" roared Art, who had come in late.

Somehow the spirit of spontaneity and fellowship which had existed so strongly the night before had vanished. No one detected this change more quickly than George, but he knew he couldn't dismiss the meeting now. There was a higher duty, he thought: a duty to posterity. And so he recovered the offensive by firing questions at the group.

"You fellows are going to remember Our Sophomore Year of it takes the rest of the day!" he barked. "Tom, do you remember Homecomings?"

Tom, caught off guard, replied in the affirmative.

"Good," rejoined George. "Doug, what have you to add?"

"I remember drinking hot cocoa at the Shop on cold March evenings, and Sunday breakfasts, and the crunch of the first frost underfoot, and the merry laughter round the Christmas tree, and sweating exams, and German 1-f, and . . ."

"All right," interrupted George. "Give someone else a chance, Bryan, how about you?"

"Well, I remember Qual & Quan labs, and Mr. Bondurant, and The Box after the flicks, and the Taxi Stand before the flicks, and balmy Sundays at the quarry, and the two Kaleidoscopes, and . . ."

"Okay," George snapped, petulantly. "Hal, what have you to offer?"

"I remember ratting and how the institution began to crumble as a vital force during Our Sophomore Year. VC fell, and the frosh grew frosher and grosser than ever."

A hand darted from a lap.

"I just wanted to observe that Our Sophomore Year was primarily one of settling down to a routine", cooed Bill. "Not much happened in terms of specifics," he added, "but as a whole, it was a significant and eventful period."

George beamed. Now that the strain had broken, he could sense alert young minds snapping to life. Like an electric current, he could feel ideas sparking, profound thoughts germinating. He was proud of his men.

A motion for adjournment was made, seconded, and passed. As the students shuffled eagerly from the hall, a smile crept across George's bland face, down his arm, across the rostrum, and out the partly-open window. He had won.

III THEIR FINEST HOUR

George ascended the well-worn steps of the library, just a trace of nervousness visible on his lean, young face. Somehow, he thought to himself, it was right that the Junior class history should be recalled in the Rare Book Room. Here was the symbol of all that was noble and fine and pure at Hampden-Sydney, and he hoped this atmosphere would be reflected in the chronicle of Our Junior Year.

As he opened the heavy oak door, his nostrils flared with the acrid mustiness of centuries. Brushing aside cobwebs, he made his way to the single dingy window. As he cracked it, little splinters of glass trickled down his arm like quicksilver. Peering out at the verdant campus, enveloped in the luxuriant ponoply of spring, an overwhelming weltsmerz shook his angular frame.

A rap on the door interrupted his ruminations. It swung open, and in streamed the elite of the Senior class. It was Smokie who spoke first:

"Instead of going at this piecemeal," he chirped, "what say we just make a list of happenstances of Our Junior Year and pass on it? Oddly enough, I happen to have just such a list:

"Our Junior Year saw Dr. Robert installed as the seventeenth President of Hampden-Sydney; the football team acquitted itself rather well; Dr. Lacy assumed the pastorate of College Church; Dr. McRae received a scholarship for Biblical study abroad; Mr. Crawley returned and rejuvenated the glee club; Messrs. Reaves and Hummel left their positions to pursue graduate study, as did Dean Kinard; Mr. Hoffman's book appeared, rocking publishing circles and small Christian colleges everywhere; and the Theta Chi house dng in at the Apex.

"That seems to pretty well cover it," declared Bill, donning his toga. "Thank you, Mr. President!"

As the boys filed from the musty room, George's neck reddened at the obvious duplicity of his friends. They had, it was clear, conspired to railroad the whole thing through—just to embarrass him.

A sense of futility surged through him as he trudged wearily Cushingward. He was licked and he knew it.

"You know," mused George, "I think our Freshman year was the best I've ever spent here at college."

"I was just thinking the same thing," replied Sonny, as he spat reflectively into the arcopagus. It was a long way to the stars.

IV TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY

As this is being written, Our Senior Year has not advanced sufficiently to permit a comprehensive chronicle of its events. Nevertheless, it is possible to report that, as of this writing, the Commons has been brought up to minimum eupeptic standards, the campus was the scene of numerous physical improvements during the past summer, the final stultification of ratting was observed, and the hill has been enriched by the addition of Messrs. Linkenanger, King, Wadill, and McAllister; Professor Stine, and Coach Fitzgerald to the college community. It is also safe to observe that the football team acquitted itself rather well, and that an unusually large freshman class brought the enrollment of the college to an astronomical 399.

Otherwise, our final year at Hampden-Sydney was unmarked by great upheaval. As members of the Class of '57 we can but view our monuments which, to the uninitiated, might appear merely water towers.

The past four years have been a catharsis of all the puerile notions and half-notions which we harbored in September, 1953. There is not one among us who has not been profoundly changed by his experiences here; who has not been molded into a more reflective being, a more erudite, cultivated, polished, astute, Christian being. It is but another tribute to the magnificent concept of education with which we have been inculcated that we are able to acknowledge this metamorphosis perhaps before we can fully appreciate it.

We have drunk from the cup of the liberal arts. Some of us have drunk deeply; others have but moistened parched lips. But in so much as it is possible to fully prepare oneself for life in our turbulent world, we have done so. And never shall we forget that it was Hampden-Sydney College which brought about this desideratum.

ATHLETICS

A NEW COACH...

Before the well-known mentor, Jim Hickey, left Death Valley, he nominated his assistant coach, Bob Thalman, as best man to succeed him and as the autumn weeks progressed, Mr. Hickey's candidate proved himself to be so. Although he did not have a spotless season, he was the nucleus of desire for a badly crippled team: not to mention his cool pre-calculated strategy.

When Coach Robert Thalman came to Hampden-Sydney in 1953, he had a valuable repertoire of experience by playing and coaching on both college and professional teams. He started his college football career in the Belmont Abbey Junior College team for two seasons, then served for three years in the Pacific Theatre for the United States Marine Corps. He matriculated at the University of Richmond in 1946 and after two seasons of football, graduated in 1948. Upon graduation, he coached three years at Benedictine High School in Richmond and played two years with the professional Richmond Rebels. He then moved to Norfolk where he did an outstanding job in both football and track at Norview High School.

In addition to his assistant duties in both football and basketball, Coach Thalman also handled the highly successful Tiger track team, which, for the past three seasons, has finished high in the Mason-Dixon standings.

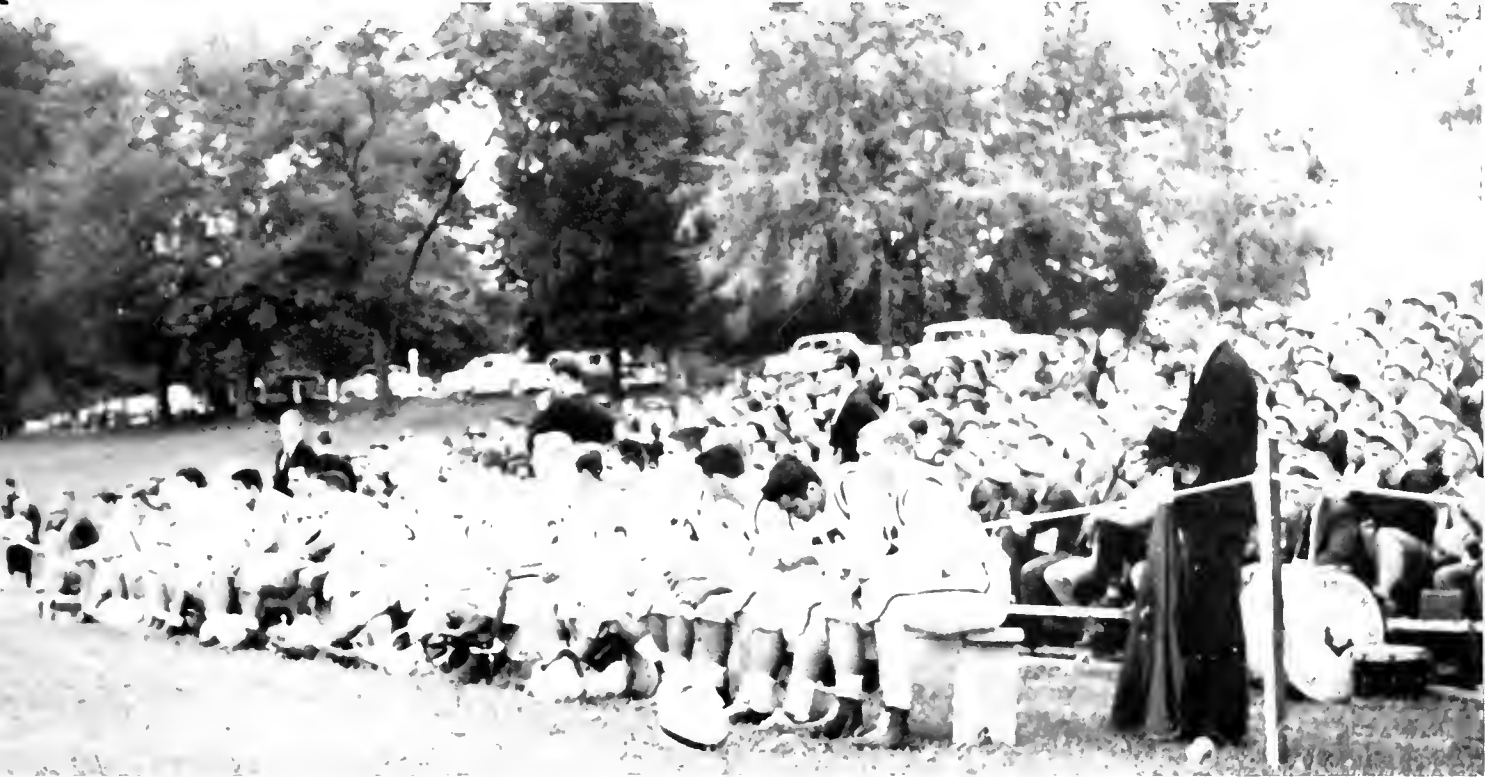

It is rather hard to laud such a meritorious person as our new Coach, but we sincerely hope we can suffice to say, "Good Luck" and as he knows, we are behind him all the way.

Coach Thalman

Tigers Capitalize on

Frazer, LeHew To Captain '56 Squad

Tackle Jim Frazer and fullback Bill LeHew, a 5' 10", 180 pound senior, have been elected co-captains of the Tiger football team. LeHew has led the team for the past two years.

MONTGOMERY, W. VA., SEPT. 15—Charlie Denny's pass interception in the first period gave Hampden-Sydney their first impetus to score as Bob Furr, several plays later, swept his own right end for two yards making it 6 to 0. The only other score in the game was the result of Wally Giglio's magnificent punt return and a series of well executed plays during the mud-fest. Tech's only real scoring threat came in the fourth quarter, but due to the excellence of the Tiger line, led by Jim Frazer, they fumbled on the 12 and then it was too late!

BRIDGEWATER, VA., SEPT. 22—Fumbles, fumbles, fumbles. Cooke started the multi-fumble recovery spree by pouncing on two Eagle fumbles early in the first quarter. One on the kick-off which in two Tiger plays terminated in our first T.D. The other, moments later, on the 40, which Tommy Bryant plus two plays pushed 10 yards for pay dirt. Bridgewater scored on one of our fumbles, coupled with a roughing penalty, but another Eagle fumble clenched the game as Charlie Denny scampered in one play into Bridgewater's end zone.

GUILFORD, OCT. 6—Sparked by the fine offensive performance of freshman Bill Benson and the crushing defensive play of the line the Hampden-Sydney gridders took their third win in four starts as they beat the visiting Quakers, 27-19.

As the result of a leaky pass defense, the visitors struck three times in the first half to lead 19-9. The second half, however, was all Tiger from start to finish. The Bengals, who had scored in the first half on a field goal by Bob Saylor and a quarterback sneak by Bob Furr, bounced back with three electrifying scores in the remaining second period. From this point, the Quakers never revived.

Denny flips lid for a little skin from Seay.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY, SEPT. 29—

The first home game proved to be rather disappointing as the Bengals bowed to a more powerful E. & H. team led by Sonny Holmes. Their well-executed pitchout plays were found to be most devastating to the badly crippled Tiger eleven. Hampden-Sydney, at first, held their own as Bill Benson teamed with Wally Giglio made the score 7-6 in the first quarter, but "Que sera, sera"; at the half we trailed by 20-6. Both teams scored in the third quarter leaving the fourth to a tug of war.

JOHNS HOPKINS, OCT. 13—The Tigers lost their second game of the season to the Blue Jays of Baltimore, 14-13. Fumbles proved costly to the Bengals even the first periods of the game. The Tigers received the opening kick-off and marched to the Jays' 30, only to fumble there. After Johns Hopkins scored, the Tigers capitalized on a fumbled punt deep in enemy territory. Bryant scored and Saylor converted to tie it up at the half. The home team was the first to draw blood in the second half, but the Bengals were not to be denied as they retaliated the same; however, the conversion was wide and try as they would the Tigers were unable to overcome the one-point deficit.

WESTERN MARYLAND, OCT. 20—Bobby Furr and Jim Felty started the aerial attack which brought the Tigers their fourth win, 34-14.

The Tigers first scored on a 45-yard pass play from Furr to Felty. Later in the second period, Furr hit Bill Benson with another aerial for the score. Western Maryland scored in the second quarter and at the half the score stood 14-7. In the third period Furr sneaked over from the three to put the Tigers in front 21-7. Benson and Denny both scored in the final quarter while Western Maryland tallied only once more.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY, VA., OCT. 27—Approximately 2,000 fans donned their rainhats to see a very thrilling game and witness Death Valley's new scoreboard. Bob Furr got the ball rolling on a 60-yard punt return and Tom Bryant plus Charlie Denny pushed the ball up to Sewanee's 17-yard line. Bryant ran his right end for six points while the conversion was wide.

Sewanee bobbled the ball on their ten, and the quick Tiger line snatched it up; Giglio galloped across on the next play. Sewanee scored, and with their extra point made the score 12-7 at the half. Naturally this made the second half very tense, but due to the excellent line play of the Tigers, led by Jim Frazer and Frank Buck, the Deacons never got past the 50-yard line, much less get a first down.

Actually neither team was able to move very well, but the Tigers took advantage of their opportunities to surge ahead 12-7.

RANDOLPH-MACON, NOV. 10—The Hampden-Sydney football team playing near perfect football erupted for three quick touchdowns in the fourth quarter to down the Yellow Jackets from Ashland, 27-7. For the first three quarters the two teams battled on even terms the score being tied 7-7 at the half. The third period was scoreless but the Tigers started rolling in the final stanza. They went 54 yards on seven plays to go ahead 13-7. Minutes later Furr hit Felty in the end zone and in the final minutes Furr hit Felty again for the last score.

W. & L., NOV. 17—Rain and a mud-soaked field failed to dampen the Tiger's spirit as they downed W. & L., 12-0. The Tigers first scored as a result of a W. & L. fumble on the 18. Four plays later Furr fired to Felty in the end zone for the score. The Bengals struck again in the second half when freshman Billy Benson climaxed a 67-yard drive with a 35-yard romp around right end. The Tigers held from there to give rookie coach Bob Thalman his seventh win of the year.

Thanks, Coach Miller

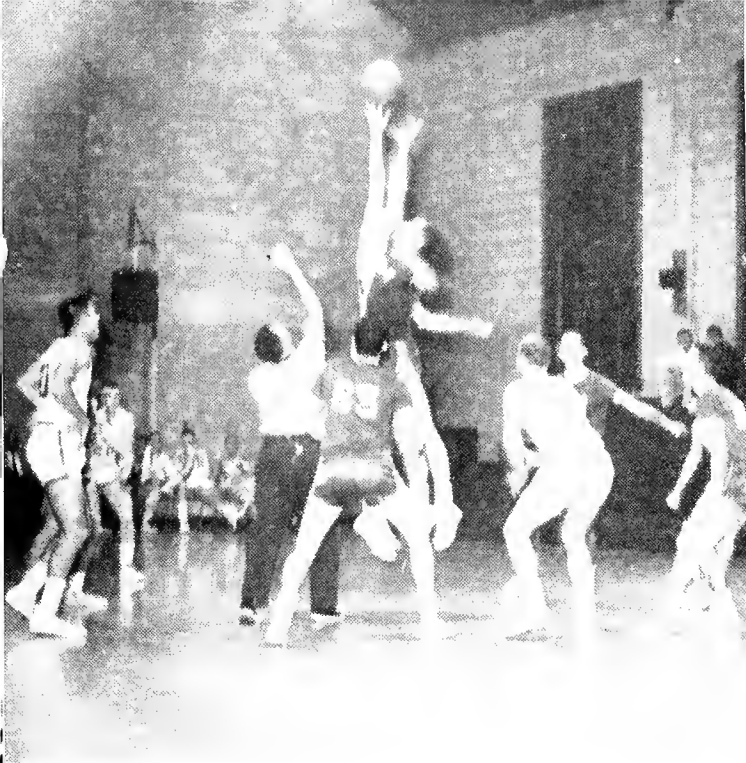

Coach "Weenie" Miller's Bengal Five, led by returning lettermen Capt. Doug Joyce, Russ Holcomb, Horsley Putt, Warren Carter, plus freshman Leon Hawker played its toughest schedule to date.

Hawker, a freshman guard who led the team in scoring, captivated the year's scoring honors with 31 points against a Big Six rival V.M.I. Captain Doug Joyce proved a great leader and consistent scorer, hitting double figures in almost every game. Russ Holcomb, along with Horsley Putt, led the team in rebounds and could be depended upon even when the going was tough. Warren Carter's steady and tireless effort rounded out a good starting team.

Ted Sheppard and Gil Sayres also saw quite a bit of action at the forward and center positions respectively, their height adding a solid support to the rebounding strength of the Tigers. Guards Bobby Humphries and Vernel Martin contributed greatly to the strength of this position.

After a slow start, the Tigers placed 5th in a field of eight at the Quantico Invitational Tournament. After this encounter, the Tigers took the Little Eight Meet in their stride as they completely dominated the backboards and score. Both were impressive wins over Lynchburg 69-58 in the semi-finals and a 74-11 effort over Randolph-Macon in the championship.

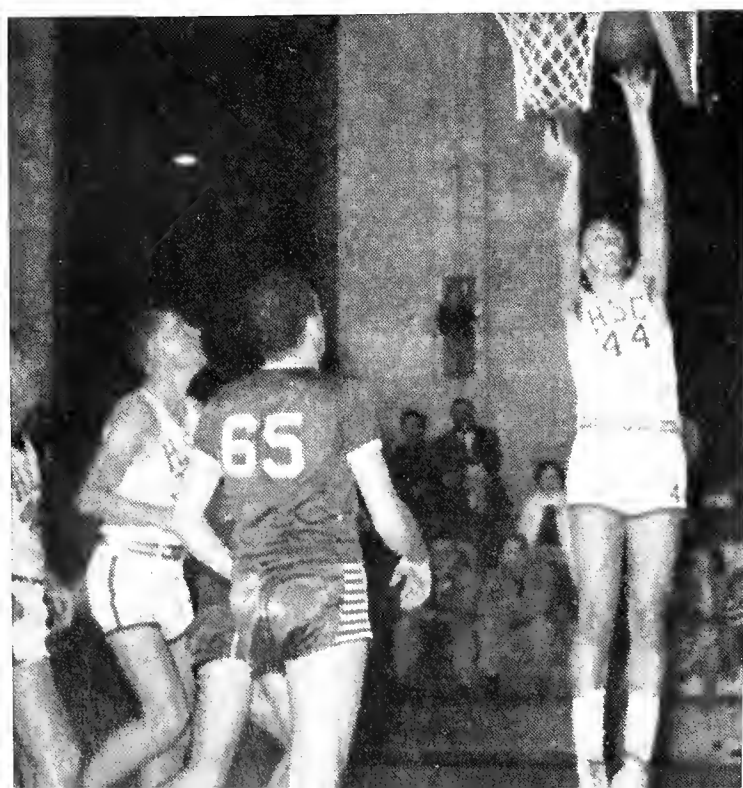

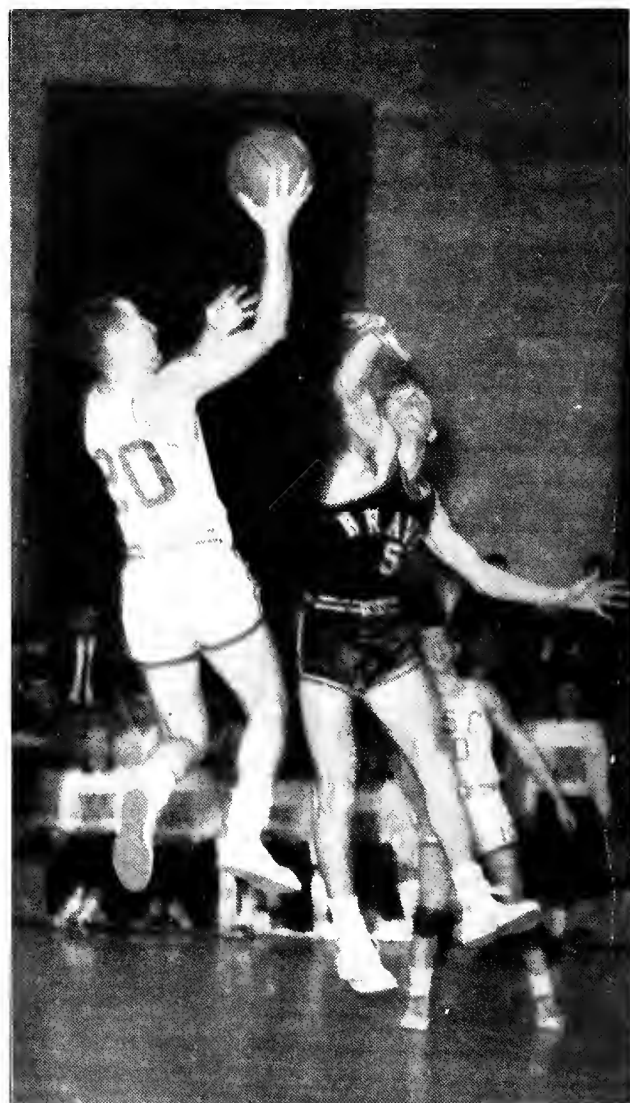

Going Up

The most imposing wins came at the hands of the perennial Mason-Dixon champs, Mount St. Mary's, in one of the best games ever played on the hard boards of Gammon Gym.

With the season all but over, Hampden-Sydney College stands 13-9 with four remaining games and a berth in the Mason-Dixon Championships.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

Despite the loss of coach Fitzgerald in midseason the baby Tigers made a good showing of themselves against some strong opponents. Led by guard Buck Dodson the J-V's dropped highly regarded St. Christophers and Randolph-Macon J-V. The other guard spot was filled by Charlie Collman, with Forest Hudson and Larry Smith holding down the forward positions and Tom Darnes at Center. Lew Drew and Ben Crowder also saw considerable action at center and guard.

BART ROPER

With four top returning lettermen and a group of promising freshmen, the '56 Tiger tennis team took to the courts with high hopes of a successful season. John Richards, a stalwart for three years previous played at the number one post. Bill Odom and Jim White top performers on last year's squad were second and third respectively. Freshman Bob Cunningham held down the number four post while Martin Harris and Banks Simmons filled out the first six positions. Freshmen Bart Roper, Larry Smith, George Shields, and Carter Whitehead completed the team.

Although the courtmen finished the season with a 4-8 record, the books do not tell the whole story. Five of those eight losses were to Big Six schools. In the Little Eight contests the Hampden-Sydney netmen defeated Bridgewater, Randolph-Macon, and Roanoke for a Little Eight record of 4-3.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

Although cross country is considered one of the minor sports at this college and is seldom stressed; nevertheless, there are always a few boys who have the determination and desire to run that make up a cross-country team. Such was the story this year.

Because of its confliction with football, the harriers were at a distinct disadvantage without a regular coach. Frank Moore, a veteran trackster and a mainstay on the team for several years, took charge and did a magnificent job. Besides Moore, Sophomores Bob Hippensteele, King Waddill, and Stuart Copeland were the only returnees. Freshmen Tom Allen, Bill Saunders, Dave Knotts, and Sophomore Dave Moore rounded out the young and inexperienced team.

The "thinclads" lost their opening meet to Lynchburg College, 24-31. Bob Hippensteele was the first Hampden-Sydney man across the line finishing third. It was much the same story at Randolph-Macon a week later with Hippensteele finishing second this time.

The harriers played host to Roanoke and Norfolk Division of William and Mary in their next two meets and were beaten 15-45 and 22-33 respectively. The Hampden-Sydney tracksters were badly outclassed in the Little Eight meet at Bridgewater, with King Waddill the top Hampden-Sydney "thinclad" finishing only eighteenth.

Although this season has been very disappointing, with the proper support and hard work our cross-country team might well have a winning season next fall.

MASON-DIXON CHAMPIONS

When the 1956 baseball campaign opened the Hampden-Sydney baseballers were given no better than an even chance to better last year's mark of 9-6. When the season was over they had won their first Mason-Dixon conference baseball championship. The key to their success? Thirteen outstanding, returning lettermen, a strong group of freshmen, and coach Wennie Miller. At first, pitching seemed to be the big problem, but when freshman Billy Pierce began to reel off one victory after another, it was quickly solved. Backed by the strong arms of Siersema, Humphreys, Tynes and Carter the pitching staff was solid. Catching also seemed dubious, but three-year man Jess Griffin quickly filled the vacancy. With such big names as Humphreys, Marlow, Smith and Cox the infield was probably the best in the conference. Adding the names of new men Rickman and Joyce to lettermen Harlow and Cooke gave the Tigers an outstanding outfield.

The Bengal baseballers opened a twenty-two game schedule against R.P.I. on March 26 with a 19-7 victory. The Bengals pounded out fourteen hits, four by leftfielder Gene Cooke.

The Bengals picked up their second straight win by beating a powerful Delaware team 3 to 2. Bob Humphreys allowed only scattered hits in going all the way. Ed Harlow wrapped the game up by scoring Jimmy Smith on a long fly in the seventh.

Humphreys lays one down

After two disappointing losses to Norfolk Division 3-2 and Harvard 11-12, the Tigers bounced back with a 12 to 1 decision over Bridgewater.

Freshman Billy Pierce gave a good account of himself as he hurled 11-8 to their second Mason-Dixon victory by downing Catholic U. 10 to 2. The Tigers followed with a high scoring 16-13 victory over V.M.I. Bernie Marlow accounted for eight runs with two home runs and a double.

In their next contest, probably the best of the year, H-S nosed out Richmond 11 to 10. It was the relief pitching of Carter, the hitting of Harlow, and the outstanding play of Smith and Humphreys which gave the Bengals their big win.

Pierce took the mound again and pitched the Tigers to a 11-1 victory over Lynchburg. Quickly following this victory with an 8-2 triumph over Randolph-Macon the Tigers took first place in the Little Eight and the Mason-Dixon.

Harlow looks for hat after circuit clout

Siersema heads for the barn

After a close loss to W and L 9 to 8 the Tigers avenged themselves by walloping Norfolk Division 19-7. It was Pierce on the mound again as first baseman Hunter Cox led the Bengal attack with five RBI's.

Following a 9-3 setback at the hands of Bridgewater, the Tigers trounced Richmond 13-1. Warren Carter started and went all the way. Harlow and Joyce led the Bengal hitting attack with three hits apiece.

H-S lost their next two contests 10-9 to Randolph-Macon and 16-13 to V.M.I. A free swinging contest with Western Maryland followed which ended in a 12 to 12 tie after 11 innings.

Billy Pierce came up with the best pitching performance of the year as H-S blanked American U. in their next outing. It was Pierce again as H.S. routed Lynchburg the following week 13-6. Harlow, Smith, and Cooke collected 10 hits between them. In the last game of the season H.S. avenged an early season loss by edging W-L 7-6.

Loyola came to Tigerland to play the best two out of three games for the Mason-Dixon championship. Having lost the first game, the spirited Tiger-bounded back to take the next two 11-10 and 14-10 to win the championship.
